

Additional Financial Resources

Podcasts:

- HerMoney - Explains personal finance basics, presenting how-to guides, and analyzing current events affecting the financial world
- Beyond the Dollar - Presents practical financial information and tips through a personal lens, drawing on Sarah's and her guests' successes and failures in tackling financial and life decisions.
- Wine and Dime - Presents expert financial planning advice on everything from student debt to estate planning to the implications of new laws and Supreme Court decisions
- Brown Ambition - Tackles questions about financial planning, budgeting, and creates "a safe, judgment-free zone where women of color can unapologetically talk about building wealth"
- Financial Feminist - Talks about "how to make more, spend less, and feel financially confident in a world run by rich white men".

Education & Banking:

- National Women's Law Center - Articles and fact sheets about the gender wage gap, equal pay laws, workers' rights, and various financial support programs (from social security to unemployment benefits to tax credits)
- Savvy Ladies - A non-profit dedicated to providing free financial education to all women. The organization provides a financial hotline, financial literacy and planning courses, webinars, expert panel discussions, and more
- Pew Research Center - Draws on independent studies and surveys as well as US Census and Labor Bureau statistics to present information on women in the workplace, the gender wage gap, and more
- Ellevest - A "woman-first financial company" that offers paid courses, financial guidance, wealth management, and investment services to women along with a variety of free educational resources and articles
- Rooted Planning Group - A personal finance planning and advisory group founded, owned, and run by women that offers both paid financial advisory services and free educational resources.
- Women who Money - A step-by-step guides for financial management, career finances, housing, investing, family finances, estate planning, and more
- Dow Jones - Provides both free and paid financial management and education resources, including a free investing MasterClass, a paid year-long financial management and wealth building course, a financial literacy blog, and an educational YouTube channel.
- Women's Law Center of Maryland's "Your Money Matters" Guide - Guides readers through eight goals of smart money management to understand and elevate your financial situation.